President Takes Over Foreign Affairs Role

By WARREN ROGERS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev are locked in a strange kind of contest—each trying to convince the other his side is united on the issue of the future.

With Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on the sidelines fighting cancer, Eisenhower moved into a more active foreign affairs role. In East Germany, Khrushchev was busy assembling his allies.

Officials said today Eisenhower may make a radio-television appeal for public understanding and support. They said the President does not yet think the situation warrants such a broadcast. But they foresee it as a possible move if there is a further heightening of tension.

Eisenhower's radio-TV adviser, actor-producer Robert Montgomery, was at the White House Friday and Thursday. Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty said this was coincidental and the President has no present plans for a broadcast.

Bul Eisenhower was taking other well-publicized steps.

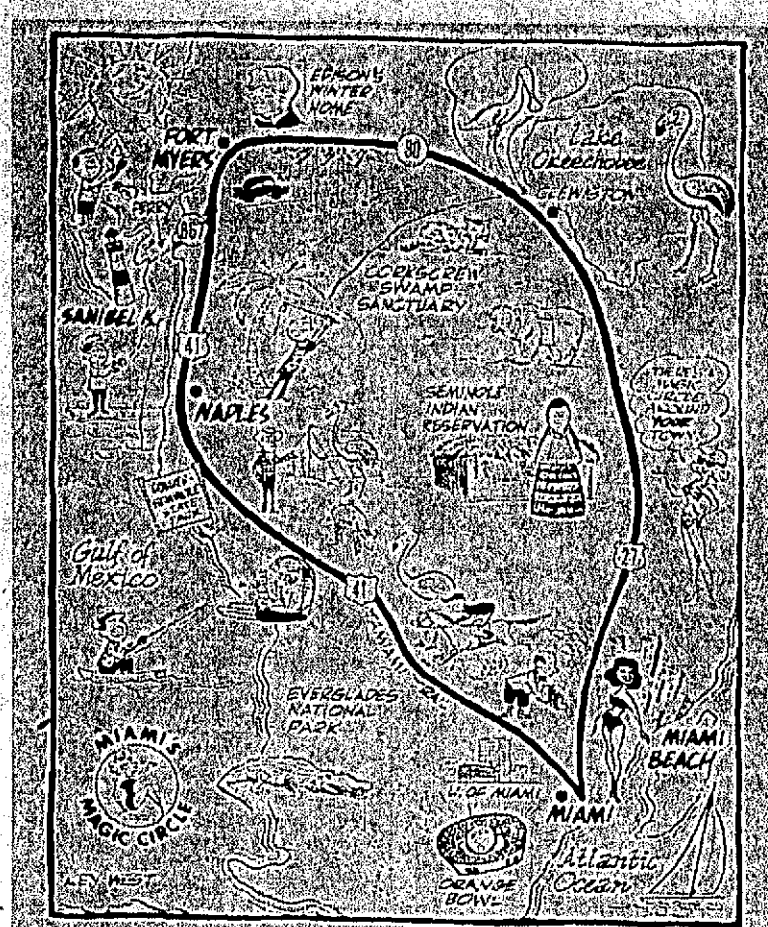

He met for 90 minutes at the White House Friday with the four top Republican and Democratic leaders in Congress. He followed that up with a White House session with eight other key Republican and Democratic members of Congress.

A proclamation of complete bipartisan support came from the four top leaders—Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson and Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, both of Texas; Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and House Republican Leader Charles Halleck of Indiana.

They all said they are four square behind Eisenhower's policy of standing firm against Soviet efforts to oust the Allies from Berlin while keeping flexible, disposed to negotiate a settlement.

In between meeting congressional leaders, Eisenhower paid a hospital visit to Dulles. The White House said he brought Dulles up to date on his consultation with Khrushchev, busy talking up peaceful coexistence at a trade fair in Leipzig, East Germany, let it be known Friday he will consult with his satellite leaders next week in East Berlin.

Southern Florida Offers Many Exciting Contrasts

SOUTHERN FLORIDA'S SUNLAND centers around Miami, whose attractions include the startlingly modern University of Miami campus, Orange Bowl and the glittering, tinsel Miami Beach playground. The Magic Circle north leads through Hialeah; Swampy beautiful Fort Myers, which has preserved the winter home and laboratory of Thomas Edison. A palm-lined boulevard leads to the auto ferry for Sanibel Island, a shell collector's paradise. The return to Miami, via the Tamiami Trail (U. S. 41), is through a part of the mysterious Everglades country, where airboats are used for exploration.

Editor's Note: This is the 14th in a series of suggested highway tour maps which Hope Star is publishing weekly. The series will cover the South and Southwest during the winter months and the Northern sections in the spring. This is excellent material to cut out and paste up in a scrapbook for future reference when planning your vacation trip.

By EDWARD COLLIER
More than the bright blue waters of Biscayne Bay separate Miami from Miami Beach, cities that represent completely different ways of life. Both, however, share a franchise on warm winter sun and every conceivable attraction for the visitor.

The exciting thing about planning a Magic Circle tour of southern Florida is that you can enjoy the friendly hospitality of Miami make inspection tours of the unspoiled, glittering beach and then swing out into a vast area that encompasses the primitive Everglades country, land of the Seminole Indians, and the uncrowded beauty of the beaches and islands of the west (Gulf) coast.

Save your first peak at Miami Beach until the early evening hours when Collins Avenue, the "main stem," becomes transformed into an unbelievable fairland of color, lighting effects and man-created glamour.

For many years ago all this was a long, narrow sandspit where Miami residents went for parties. Today it's an unending chain of strikingly modern hotels, huddled so close that you rarely get a glimpse of the ocean a few hundred feet away — a Baghdad where mink, rich food and planned entertainment is the order of the day.

Exotic Names
At 96th Street you enter Bal Harbour, some 60 blocks on north it becomes the Sunny Isles area. But with the exception of occasional stores, Collins Avenue remains the same. Here some of the hostilities are listed as motels instead of hotels but you can't tell the difference from the exotic names on the marquees; most have the same lavis, circular type lobbies and narrow front entrance driveways. One motel-in-name boasts three swimming pools.

During "the season" prices will be a first-visit shock. The urbane motel desk clerk will gently inform you that his rooms start at $30 a day (they face the next hotel or motel, or Collins Avenue; the ante climbs for pool or ocean view units).

If your children are always asking for ice cream sundaes or the mouth watering pastries, lead them into almost any of the plush hotels for the best bargain on the beach. We gave our boys the full treatment at the Hotel Fontainebleau's fountain room. First they were hushed by the magnificence of the decor, which would have made a king of France envious, and then by the size of the 50-cent sundae set before them. Fruit, nuts, sauce and whipped cream hid the big scoops of ice cream. It was as much as an ice cream cone. Newest of the luxury outposts is the Hotel Diplomat in the beach town of Hollywood — a mere 200-plus blocks north of General Douglas MacArthur Causeway, the dramatic and photogenic approach to Miami across Biscayne Bay. The vivid sunset waters are dotted by

Justice Dept. Taking Toll of U. S. Hoodlums

By JACK ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several of the nation's top hoodlums have run into black days since the Justice Department started a big push against the underworld a year ago.

More are expected to topple as federal authorities continue to steady whittling out of cases against underworld characters.

Justice Department officials said today Atty. Gen. William F. Rogers' program for an unrelenting long-term attack on the hoodlum element is moving along just about as planned.

Rogers announced the program a year ago as a systematic "non-sensational" drive to combat organized crime with a highly organized series of prosecutions aimed primarily at getting "the 100 top hoodlums" behind bars or out of the country.

The names on the select list have never been published, but as a starter Rogers ordered a pooling of information on these characters from the files of the FBI, the immigration service, and the Treasury units handling counterfeiting, narcotics, alcohol and income tax cases. The Council of State Governments and the National Assn. of State Attorneys General pledged cooperation with respect to information available to them.

Millon Wessel, 35, former assistant U. S. attorney in New York City, was recalled from private law practice to act as an information coordinator with the title of special assistant to the attorney general.

One of his tasks was to check out the activities of some 60 men who showed up at a so-called "crime convention" at Apalachin, N. Y., Nov. 14, 1957.

In the year since the Wessel task force started, the highly secret work — and in cooperation with state and local officials;

Vito Genovese who has been described as top man in the New York underworld, and who attended the Apalachin meeting was indicted on a narcotics charge and is now on trial in New York.

Russell Bufalino of New York, another Apalachin delegate, has been ordered deported and deportation proceedings have been started against some others who went to Apalachin.

Joe Profaci, also a delegate, and who has been identified with Brooklyn rackets, has been denaturalized — usually a preliminary step toward deportation action.

Gambler Frank Costello, already in prison for income tax evasion, has had his acquired American citizenship revoked.

Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, one-time right hand man for Al Capone, was convicted of income tax evasion in Chicago and received a three-year prison sentence.

Peter Licavoli, reputed leader of the Detroit Purple Gang, was also convicted on the same charge and got 2½ years.

Law Tightens on Traffic Violators

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas House today passed a bill setting up a point system under which the operators licenses of habitual traffic violators would be suspended.

The vote was 90-0 on the bill by Pulaski Rep. Glenn Walther.

The State Police Department would administer the point system. Any driver accumulating 20 points within three years would have his license revoked for six months.

Points are set according to seriousness of the violation. Ten points would be charged for drunken driving or hit-and-run involving a personal injury.

Minor violations would be charged at three points each. A person apprehended driving while his license was suspended under provisions of the bill would face a mandatory 10-day jail sentence.

The House passed a resolution calling for a study by the Legislative Council of all school textbooks to determine whether they contain subversive or un-American philosophies.

Two anti-integration bills by Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett were called up for a vote but withdrawn temporarily because of objections.

The two bills re-define Arkansas law on promoting lawsuits and were designed to inhibit the actions of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People in school integration litigation.

The House spent most of the morning passing minor bills.

UA Medical Center Money Bills Pass

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas House today passed in voting fashion appropriations for the University of Arkansas, the state Medical Center and seven state-supported colleges.

Total of the appropriations was $2 million dollars.

The only close vote was on a $4,545,000 annual appropriation for the Medical Center. Vote on this bill was 64 to 27.

Perry Rep. Paul Van Dalsem staged a one-man campaign against appropriations for the University of Arkansas and the Medical Center.

He obtained some support on the Medical Center bill by claiming it would "reward folks who aren't doing a good job by giving them salary increases."

Van Dalsem also attacked high salaries at the university but missed only four votes against the bill.

Sovereignty Group Member Dies

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP) — Richard B. McCulloch Sr., attorney for the State Sovereignty Commission, died at a hospital here today. He was 64.

McCulloch was a former member of the Arkansas Public Service Commission, was a longtime advocate of state rights.

He headed an Arkansas delegation which made a trip to Virginia in 1955 to study that state's laws on massive resistance to integration.

McCulloch was one of the designers of legislation that set up the Sovereignty Commission in 1957. He helped draw up the state's pupil assignment law which was adopted as an initiated act in 1956.

He was considered an authority on constitutional law.

A native of Marianna, McCulloch formerly lived at Little Rock and had resided at Forrest City for 21 years. He was a graduate of the University of Arkansas and the Harvard Law School.

Survivors include his widow; a son, Richard McCulloch Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Fletcher Long, both of Forrest City, and two brothers.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at the Graham Memorial Presbyterian Church here, and burial will be at Forrest City.

No Romance, Says Debbie Reynolds

NEW YORK (AP) — Debbie Reynolds said today she wished a happy marriage for former husband, Eddie Fisher, and Elizabeth Taylor.

But as to whether there is any new romance in her own life, the movie star fingered her blonde hair, smiled and said: "I should say not."

Miss Reynolds talked with newsmen at Idlewild Airport after a flight from Los Angeles. She is en route to Spain to make a picture.

"As we all know, Eddie and Elizabeth are very much in love and wish to be married, and I am sure they will be married."

"I wouldn't want to stand in their way. I wish them all happiness. That's what we all want, isn't it?"

Emmet Taking on Western Look

By MARY ANITA LASETER

If you have been to Emmet in the past few weeks, you have noticed some construction in the area of the Ark-La Gas Co. There has been much talk about a new plant in that community, but the buildings do not seem to look very "industrial."

There is to be a factory in Emmet with the official title of The Emmet Plant, Huntington Buggy Works Div., Ark-La Gas Co. Along with the factory there will be a Western "town" and that is what folks have seen under construction at the present time.

It is expected for the plant to be completed and in production by May 1, the weather permitting. It will employ a minimum of eight people. It is estimated that there will be about thirty on its regular work force.

Problems of course, there were some, but the most difficult phase of construction was getting an authentic layout for the Western town. The weather has provided the biggest obstacle, since plans were complete before construction began.

The future holds two interesting aspects. There is a growing demand for horse drawn equipment, and Ark-La hopes that the Western town will attract considerable tourist trade. Both will mean improving the impact of their product on the public and stimulating the economy of Emmet and surrounding territory.

The area to be occupied by the plant and its satellite "town" will be approximately four acres. The project will be open to the public at all times except, of course, at night. Even then there will be a schedule for night attendance at the Western town.

With the great interest in general public in Western atmosphere these days, it is understandable why that was the theme chosen for the new town within a town. It will have the reproduction of a harness shop, a blacksmith shop, a livery stable, and "saloon" which will serve cold drinks.

Needless to say, these will be soft drinks. There probably will be some sort of "lunch room" in connection with the saloon.

As for the plant itself, at the outset only horse drawn equipment will be manufactured. The demand for such products is nation-wide and growing, and there is a strong revival throughout the country for "period" products.

These products will range in price from $325 to $1,500, depending on what you want.

There will be 60 different types of horse drawn equipment manufactured. The principal demand up to now has been for buckboards, surreys with the fringe on top, and the conventional farm buggy. However, in recent weeks a demand for pony wagons has developed.

Considerable nation-wide interest has been shown in this project. At the present time, the company is behind in its production of horse drawn equipment by 83 units. It is operating in a plant at Huntington, Ind., and another at Lawrenceburg, Ind. The equipment from both plants will be removed to Emmet, and it appears that it will be after the Emmet plant opens that the company can catch up with its orders.

Now will tourists be directed to this new project? By conventional media plus the sign boards on the highway near Emmet. Another question which came to mind when writing to an Arkia office was in regard to the new employees and their families.

Since construction is still in its early stages, no new employees have begun to move to Emmet yet. However, there is a likelihood that most, if not all, of the plants workers will be residents in Prescott and Hope. Wherever the workers reside, the people in our area will welcome the modernized "pioneer" town and buggy factory.

Czech, Polish Treaty Hinted by Khrushchev

By CARL HARTMAN

Lening, East Germany (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has dropped a hint that he may invite Poland and Czechoslovakia to join the Soviet Union in signing a peace treaty with East Germany.

Blowing hot and cold, the ebullient Soviet leader let leak the suggestion that this may be his maneuver in his pressure campaign against the West.

The Soviets are demanding an all-German treaty that would, in effect, still leave two Germanys to counter Western proposals for reunification of the country.

Bouncing around existing conditions since arriving there on Wednesday, Khrushchev has given the impression that he feels he is making headway in the war of nerves on Germany—and particularly Berlin.

Today he leaves for East Berlin with indications he may be about to set another diplomatic time bomb.

East German Premier Otto Grotewohl pointedly dropped the word that Polish Communist boss Wladyslaw Gomulka and Czech President and party boss Antonin Novotny would by here to meet Khrushchev.

Presumably, the four Communist nations will discuss going ahead with a separate peace treaty for East Germany should the West refuse to bow to terms laid down by the Kremlin from a pact covering all Germany.

Khrushchev has clearly linked the Berlin crisis with conclusion of a German peace treaty. Still hanging over as a threat to peace is his warning that the Soviet Union would turn over to the East-Germans control of Allied routes to West Berlin.

Senate Okays Packing of L. R. Board

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Senate today passed a bill to increase the membership of the Little Rock School Board from six to nine through a special local election.

The vote was 24 to 0. An emergency clause failed of adoption. The bill is considered a replacement for a bill which the Senate tabled earlier this week. The previous bill would permit Gov. Orval E. Faubus to add three members to the board, now split three to three in its attitude toward Faubus' apparent refusal to resign to court-ordered school integration.

The new bill was introduced yesterday by Sen. Max Howell of Little Rock.

The bill to permit Faubus to expand the school board aroused strong opposition from most of the Pulaski County delegation in the House, where it was introduced. It passed the House but was shunted aside—and apparently killed—in the Senate after a stirring plea from Sen. Ellis Fagan of Little Rock.

The Howell bill now goes to the House.

If it passes the House and is signed by the governor, it will be effective June 12. If the emergency clause had been adopted, it would have been effective immediately on being signed.

Two Sentenced on Forgery Charges

Hempstead Circuit Judge Lyle Brown Friday sentenced two men charged of forgery. Lon Golsion entered a plea of guilty to forgery and uttering and was sentenced to two years on each count. James E. Watkins pleaded guilty to forgery and was given a two year sentence.

Repeals Law for Holdover Jurors

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Senate has passed a bill to repeal a 1939 law which allows three members of a county Grand Jury to be held over to serve on the next grand jury.

The vote was 27-4. The bill now goes to the House.

Things the Old Folks Don't Like to Hear

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things I hope never to hear in my old age:

"Let's give this job to the Old Man. Even he can't toul up this one."

"Now Dad, you're too sensitive. Of course, we're glad to see you every time you drop in. What makes you think we're not?"

"It's hard to know what really will amuse them at that age. Stop arguing and put on your muffler. You know, you catch colds so easily."

"You do? You should have seen how he looked when he was only 60."

"Sh-h-h-h Don't talk so loud. Everything's gone but his ears. Of course he still likes that suit. After all it was fashionable in his time."

"Be really, Grandpa, you must have at least seen some covered wagons."

"We've got too many older people working for us now. What this organization needs is young blood."

"Go ahead and have another drink. The doctor says its good for you."

"Our paper plans to run a series of interviews with the towns oldest citizens, and we thought you—"

"Sorry about the health insurance. You're beyond the age bracket. However, we can still sell you an accident policy."

"Wonder who left them false teeth in the mens washroom?"

"Let's give him something really useful for his birthday. How about a rocking chair?"

"That's the trouble with men your age, Dad. You're afraid to gamble on the future. Now, if you will just lend me—"

"Hes so forgetful. If he tells the story just one more time, Ill scream."

"Wonder what he thinks about when he sits there just staring."

"It's not that he's underfoot exactly. Hes just there."

OUTDOORS

with John Alden Knight

Ever since time began, the fishermen of the world have known that fish, both fresh and salt water varieties, like to make their headquarters around bars, reefs, sunken logs, brush and trees. In the sea, sunken wrecks are famous places around which to find many varieties of the bottom feeders.

The reason, of course, is obvious. A bar or a reef, always rocky and providing countless nooks and crannies in which subaquatic creatures can find safe cover, also furnishes natural food. They, in fact, are the underwater cafeterias. Thus, as is true the world over, this provision of food and cover automatically sets up a concentration spot.

Lakes, which have little or no cover on the bare, comparatively smooth bottoms have little to offer the fish which happen to live in them. Concentration spots in such lakes are scarce and the result is that such lakes make for poor fishing. Here and there about the country, particularly in the northern states where ice forms on the surface in winter time, the conservation boys, aided by the fishermen, decided to do something about this situation.

The first successful attempts at the creation of artificial reefs or bars were accomplished by piling logs and brush on the ice. These piles were then heavily weighed with rock, so they would sink. Then Nature took over. The ice melted and the brush piles sank to the bottom. Presto! An artificial reef.

Meanwhile, the salt-water fishermen decided to take steps to improve the fishing where such improvement was needed. The Orange Beach Deep-Sea Fishing Association of Alabama came up with the idea of creating artificial reefs by dumping old automobile bodies in the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of Alabama.

The matter was taken up with the Conservation Department and the plan was approved. Club members rounded up old and useless auto wrecks which were dumped offshore in about 60 feet of water. This turned out to be quite a project but it paid off.

It was not long before snappers moved in; then came groupers, jewfish, triggerfish, king mackerel, dolphin, etc. Today, some of the finest fishing in the Gulf is found off the coast of Alabama.

Next, Florida and Long Island began the construction of artificial reefs. In both areas the plan has worked out quite well. Actually, in Florida the artificial reefing was but a portion of a more serious problem.

Florida, as you know, has the longest coastline of any state in the Union — except, possibly Alaska. At a meeting of conservationists held at the University of Florida last spring, it was pointed out that an average of 300 acres of beach is lost to Florida each year from erosion. Much of this is brought about by shifting currents, caused by extensive filling in of today's waters and the construction of solid land causeways.

Several surveys were authorized some by Florida Legislature and others by individual communities. The surveys consider two aspects of the problem — preservation of the beaches and improvement of the inshore fishing which has been definitely on the downgrade for the past ten years or more.

The result has been the construction of artificial reefs, which not only control damaging currents but attracts fish as well. Reports on these reefs are quite encouraging.

Now California has come up with a new one. Their Department of Game and Fish, under the direction of my old friend, Seth Gordon, reports the dumping of six old street cars in 60 feet of water off the Redondo-Palos Verdes coastline. There old cars were heavily ballasted to insure their permanency during storms. This is the third artificial reef off California since last June.

Street cars, yet! All right, Texas — what are you going to do to top that one?

THE STORY: A night watchman at the Buckeye plant where Jim Bennett is investigating possible sabotage, has disappeared. Later that night Bennett finds Mrs. Donovan, confidential secretary to one of the Buckeye executives in a tavern with John Simmons, a salesman for a competitor.

Dorothy Donovan moved over to make room for me. "I thought you went home, I said."

She laughed softly. "I did, but John called and persuaded me to come down and have a drink with me. I understand you two have met."

"Were buddies, John Simmons said."

Dorothy Donovan was now aware of my real job at Buckeye Abrasives. I wondered how thick she was with Simmons, if he had told her he'd given me money for not doing that job. And I was glad that I had not told Logan Masters and Howard Askerman, in Dorothy Donovan's presence, about Simmons' bribe. It was a queer situation and I didn't like it.

Simmons grinned at me. "When I saw you come in, I told Dottie we'd meet this afternoon. How're you making out, Bennett?"

"How am I making out with what?"

"You know — your job. Simmons drank from his glass again. "I don't know yet, I decided to play it straight. "I'll be in the plant for a few days, and then take over my territory. I hope to sell a few wheels."

He laughed, not a nice laugh. I knew I had him figured right. I had taken his money and now he had the needle out, true to character. I glanced at Dorothy Donovan, but she was gazing down at her glass. Nothing there, no sign. I decided to push it a little to maybe get the feel of it.

"This is fine — if I want both or you."

Her gaze was cold and direct. "You want both me. When do you expect your assistant to arrive?"

"Before noon. I hesitated, and then added, "I was a little surprised to see you at Mr. Masters' house last evening."

"Why? After all, Mr. Ackerman's secretary. He asked me to come and take notes."

"I said, 'I was also surprised to see you with John Simmons afterward.'"

"John and I have known each other for several years. We're just — friends."

"I seem to, I agreed."

Howard Ackerman's office was deserted. I sat in a chair beside Dorothy Donovan's desk. Presently, Dorothy Donovan came in looking fresh and pretty in a crisp white blouse and a black sheath skirt. She saw me, and then smiled. "Good morning, Mr. Bennett."

Pacts Signed With Three Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. officials emphasized today that the pacts concluded Thursday commit this country to come to the defense of Turkey, Pakistan and Iran only against Communist aggression.

The agreements, signed in Ankara, Turkey, set off an uproar in the Indian Parliament in New Delhi where some members interpreted them as a guarantee against aggression from any source. India and neighboring Pakistan have long been at odds.

Prime Minister Nehru said at a news conference that he was uneasy lest Pakistan use against India arms provided for use only against communism.

First non-stop Paris to New York flight was made by French Capt. O. Coste and Maurice Bellonte in 1930.

DOGS

By FARLEY MANNING
National Dog Welfare Guild

When does dog breeding cease to be a hobby and become a business?

When tax return time comes around this becomes a more than academic question with many dog breeders.

Actually, unless you display signs, have printed stationery and circulars, and advertise in newspapers or magazines, you can't hold yourself out as being in the dog business commercially. And unless you are, you can't deduct any expense whatever.

A single isolated activity or transaction is not sufficient to constitute a business.

While there are many expenses taken into consideration, if income must also be shown. For example — trophies won at dog shows must be included at their fair market value.

The sale of dogs either raised by the breeder or purchased for resale is ordinary income as is money received for board, grooming or training.

Most types of kennel buildings can be depreciated only 3 percent a year.

Some of the allowable expense deductions are: wages paid, dog food and supplies purchased, rent for kennels if rented, stud fees paid, medicines purchased, heat, water, telephone, etc.

Travelling expenses to and from shows, hotel or other expenses while exhibiting, are not deductible unless the showing of dogs is your principal business.

Dog breeders who include their finances in the federal income tax report can consider certain dogs

Mrs. Vernio Buchanan had charge of the emphasis period on "Evangelism." The meeting closed.

A salad course was served by the hostess.

any islands, covered by resident Spanish-type mansions, each with their own docks at which often are anchored yachts so large that landlubbers will insist they are ocean-going liners.

The Causeway also affords numerous and spectacular views of Miami's modern skyline, very bright and shining in the morning, and a color film display at sunset.

Top Tourist Target

Aside from its over-glamorized neighbor, Art Deco City, Miami in itself is a top tourist target. Sometime plan to see the pageantry of a football game at the Orange Bowl, which comes to a climax on New Year's Day with a melange of glitter, pomp, bands and beautiful girls that couldn't be outdone out California way. At half time they even deluge the stadium with the fragrance of orange blossoms from a plane.

The Coral Gables section of southern Miami is a delight; its shops and beautifully landscaped homes, parks and the startlingly modern and functional University of Miami campus. The pastel-colored buildings in tones of blue, yellow and green are like something out of the dream of an architect of the future.

Scholars study outdoors by lily ponds or under the palms, pines and flowering trees; the Student Union building hovers over a lagoon; one favorite campus walk is lined by royal palms.

From the University we return downtown via the Coconut Grove section to see fabulous Vizcaya, an Italian style palace, once the home of an American manufacturer and now the Dade County Art Museum. The landscaped perfection of the gardens and beauty of the fountains and statuary is matched only by the priceless Renaissance art treasures, tapestries, rare rugs and furniture within the massive walls. One of the country's most beautiful theaters is the nearby Coconut Grove Playhouse, where new shows and top Broadway stars are on the winter schedule.

The Magic Circle out of Miami leads over the Tamiami Trail (U. S. 41). The city's skyline hardly fades from view before the road plunges into the weirdly beautiful Everglades country. You get occasional glimpses of thatched-roof Seminole Indian huts, white egret gazebo, you reach a point from the other side of the canal that borders the arrow-straight road.

Most of the way this mysterious land stretches out as far as the eye can see, across vast expanses of man-high sawgrass broken only by distant clumps of pines or palms — a deceptive-looking world that best can be explored by airboats, manned by an experienced guide. These shallow, flat-bottomed craft, with airplane engines and propellers mounted all, provide exciting trips into a wilderness abounding with other, bobcats, bear, deer, alligators, turtles and hundreds of birds including snowy egrets, white and blue herons, ibis.

Fishing in this swampy wonderland is a top Florida sport, and most seasons of the year you will find boat trailers and tents occupying almost every nook of the camping area of Collier-Seminole State Park, a favorite stopping place on the Tamiami Trail. There isn't a campground within miles of the park, created in tribute to a native son one of the founders of outdoor advertising.

Island Gem

Our objective for the night was to make the last auto ferry (5 p.m.) for Sanibel Island, a 14-mile long tropical gem set in the green-blue waters of the Gulf of Mexico. Long heralded as a shell collector's paradise, we were unprepared for the picture postcard shoreline. Col. Yel of the hotel (Casa Ybel) are among the coconut palms, huge seagrape bushes and lacy pines on the wide, white beach.

Our boys were on the beach from sunrise to sunset with television, comics, and old hobbies forgotten. Between exploring and gazing into the surf, they became avid shell and driftwood collectors. The big decision of our trip was which of their prizes would be left behind; they found more than 100 different kinds of sea shells ranging from rare specimens of delicate coloring and formation to sand dollars and his conchs.

Returning to the mainland, the Magic Circle leads into Fort Meyers along a majestic, palm-lined, 11-mile boulevard (Florida 897). A "must" stop is at the winter home of Thomas Edison. The extensive gardens contain tropical trees and flowers of amazing variety and beauty.

Although Edison is reputed never to have taken a dip in it, a swimming pool built in 1898 from cement he invented has never had to be repaired. It is full of water and in perfect condition today. His original carbon bulbs are still burning after 40 years of use in the dining room of the guest house.

The barn-like laboratory across the street is like Edison's home, exactly as he left it. His first electric light bulb is on display, as is his simple office with the cot where he took a few hours of sleep each night during experiments to find a rubber substitute.

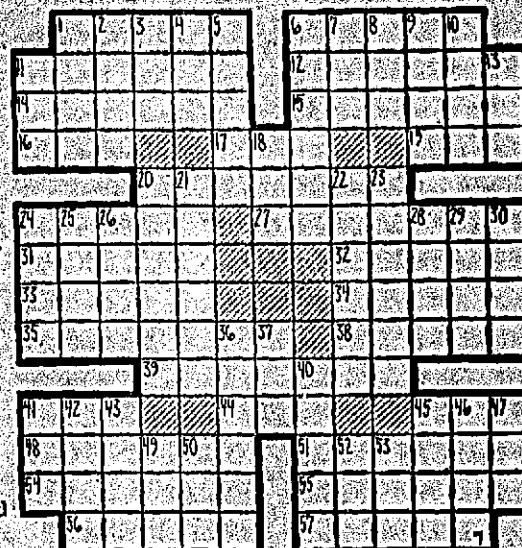

The Magic Circle curves east (State 80) along the Caloosahatchee, boasts one of the nation's largest raw cane sugar mills; visitors are welcome every day of the week from November through April.

Clewiston also is the starting point of two of the annual winter Audubon Wildlife Tours: one south to the new Corkscrew Swamp Sanctuary, where a swamp wall has been built out into the Everglades so that you can see the exotic plant and animal life in their primeval setting; the second tour skirts the west shore of Lake Okechobee and into the colorful Brighton Seminole Indian Reservation.

Scientific achievements of the world in recent years could very easily detract our minds from our Creator. Wonders of the laboratory have captured the adoration of all peoples. Lest we forget, and lest we start placing our dependance for livelihood in the marvels of science, let us take a second look. "For by him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thorns, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by Him, and for Him: and He is before all things, and by Him all things consist." Col. 1:16, 17. Then let us stay with our true creator—let us serve Him. Let us attend and support His church.
